design
Alfredo Häberli

The system of tables stables reflects a precise source of inspiration: the steel structures fixed to the ground, crafted by Alexander Calder. The lightness and agility of Calder's works has been regained. A collection entirely made of wood, of which natural elegance is applauded by the formal essentiality of each model, that compliments a number of different seating styles. The structure of stables is made of heartwood and it is a clean and incisive graphic sign. Every table is lacquered with an opaque, transparent film. Enamelled variants are also available. The collection includes tables of different heights and sizes, they are perfect for any domestic situation, responding to varied requirements, from the dining to the living room. The oak structure combine with white laminate top for the oval and triangular versions.
