

Stammtisch - Oval *

Design by Alfredo Häberli, quote:

"The idea was to design a social, warm yet visually lightweight table. The smooth shape invites a large number of people to take a place. Deliberately a bar was created in longitudinal direction just above the floor, which serves to place the feet on. The result is a posture that was previously seen on many restaurant tables: a relaxed, légère attitude that comes up when a certain amount of coziness is available."

The type of construction (sheet metal and wood) has drawn its inspiration from the modern details of the carpentry crafts; the console and joist hangers made of plain steel have their sophisticated rebirth. Different colors of the metal parts provide the table with different characters."

Stammtisch - Rectangular

Design by Alfredo Häberli

The Stammtisch is inspired by the table for the regular visitor in a cafe. Alfredo Häberli translated this idea for the home and project market.

The edges are not simply vertical, but their angle seems to move outwards at both ends, while moving slightly inwards at the sides.

The Stammtisch (= regulars' table) comes in various different models and sizes and is available with oval, rectangular and round table tops. For projects, table top materials and frame colours can be executed in line with requests.

Stammtisch - Round

Design by Alfredo Häberli

Like the other Stammtisch tables, there is a subtle detail to the edge of the table top: the edges are not simply vertical, but their angles move outwards at both ends, while moving slightly inwards at the sides.

This shape detail changes so naturally that you only notice it at second glance. As a result, although the table top is perfectly round, the top appears to be slightly oval - due to the changing table edge.

The round Stammtisch has a chassis of striking engineering. The light wood and laser cut sheet steel feel sophisticated and familiar at the same time.

The wooden legs are connected to the metal frame like a handgrip to a knife. Quoting this Swiss symbol par excellence - the army knife - lends the table a recognizable and playful appearance.

Table top, wooden legs

Solid American Ash Wood, French Oak or American Walnut. Matt lacquer.

Other wood or finishes on request.

Metal frame, colours

Standard satin Traffic White (RAL 9016) powder coating.

The frame can be lacquered on request in any regular RAL or NCS colour.

Mounting

The table is delivered flat pack, but the wooden legs are already mounted to the metal parts, so mounting is easy.

Colours

If you wish to have the metal base lacquered in another colour, find below the Quodes Colour Plan, which you can use if you want.

In addition, we offer nearly endless colour options: all regular RAL and NCS colours are possible.

Upon request, it is possible to stain the wooden parts also in a colour, in order to create a very special appearance.
